Woodbury Granite Company Has Secured a Boston Contract.

The Woodbury Granite company has recently secured the contract for furnishing Bethel granite for the new building to be erected by the Old Colony Trust company on Court street in Boston, opposite Young's hotel. The contract calls for 10,000 cubic feet of stone in the rough.

Miss Carrie Curtis and Mrs. Nettie Davis and her daughter from Lancaster, N. H., are the guests of Mrs. Clarence Chadwick for a few days.

Miss Mary Wynn has returned from a two weeks' stay at Springfield, Mass. On her return home she was accompanied by Miss Mary Mack of Springfield.

H. Closson Gilbert of Chicago was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. C. C. Stearns, last week. Mr. Gilbert was a member of the first class graduated from Whitcomb high school.

Mrs. John Bradley of Ludlow was the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. J. Graham, last week. Mrs. Bradley will be remembered as Ada Graham, whose early childhood was spent in town.

A base ball association has been organized here with George H. Tupper, John Keleher and William Crimmins directors. Dr. Otto V. Greene manager and Robert Emery captain.

Mrs. J. L. Thompson and son Paul of Newark, N. J., are in Bethel and will occupy the house of Guy Wilson during the summer. Mrs. Thompson will be remembered as Olivia Sadford, granddaughter of the late Paul Flynn.

Mrs. Melora Morse accompanied Arthur Baker to Ellsworth, Wis., on his return trip after spending some weeks in the East with friends. Mrs. Morse goes to visit her brother, John Moody, in Wisconsin, and will also spend some time with friends in St. Paul.

W. T. King and A. Lee Cady have been appointed appraisers of the stock of goods of the Bethel Dry Goods Co. in the Sargent block, and are now making the appraisal. The appointment comes from the United States court for the district of Massachusetts, where the bankruptcy proceedings of V. A. Foster are pending.

J. H. Putnam left here on Wednesday for Unionville, Conn., where he will probably remain with his son, the Rev. Daniel Putnam, till winter. He was joined by his son Robert of Hanover, N. H., who made the trip with him. Mr. Putnam expects to remain until the ordination of his son to the priesthood in the Episcopal church. Mr. Putnam was formerly a Congregational minister and for several years had charge of a parish in the state of Maine.

The extension of the Bethel Granite railway is nearly completed and it is expected that trains will be running to the lower quarry in a week. A plan is being devised to enter the upper quarry, one proposed way being a tramway operated by electricity, to take the cars from the steam road up the steep incline to the upper quarry. With the completion of this the heavy teaming which has made it impossible to keep the roads in a good condition, will end, and a better order of highway will soon develop.

MARSHFIELD

Many Floral Tributes at Funeral of H. P. Martin.

At the funeral of the late H. P. Martin the floral tributes were many and beautiful. Among them was a large wreath of white roses and asters, from Mr. and Mrs. Willard S. Martin, given by their sons, Orlando, William and Edgar, nephews of the deceased; pillow, lavender sweet peas, white carnations, roses and smilax, the Knights of Pythias; carnations, pink and white, the Pythian Sisters; pillow, "Father," white roses, pinks and sweet peas, the family; sweet peas, Madam Holmes and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Holmes; sweet peas, Mrs. Leonia Pitkin and daughter; carnations, E. F. Smith; red carnations, Miss Eva Moore; bouquet, T. W. Russell. Many more carnations, roses, sweet peas, asters, etc., covered the casket and formed a carpet beneath and around it. The house was filled with mourning relatives and friends, who extend their sincere sympathy to Mrs. Martin and sons in their bereavement. Mr. Martin will be greatly missed in this town and Plainfield. The pall bearers were the sons, Curtis L. and Walter H., nephews, Orlando, William and Edgar Martin and Elmer Holmes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown are the parents of a son, born July 15th.

Miss Mary Brown is at home from Worcester, Mass., on her summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund P. Hamilton are guests of relatives in town on the way from Randolph to their home in St. Johnsbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Davis and daughter are visiting at H. D. R. Dwinell's. Mrs. Davis will be remembered as Nellie Dwinell.

Mrs. R. B. Nonnes invited several friends of her mother, Mrs. McAllister, to visit her recently. There were six or eight ladies all over sixty years of age. All report an enjoyable time.

The lawn party at V. R. Hudson's last week was a success. About one hundred people were present. The musical program was well rendered, special mention is made of the musical talent of Master Geol Towne, who rendered several very difficult piano solos beautifully.

No Trespassing.

All persons are hereby warned that berry picking or trespassing in any manner upon my premises is strictly forbidden.

"THROWING YOUR VOTE AWAY."

Chairman of State Prohibition Ticket in Regard to It.

Editor Times: The following clipping is from the Burlington Free Press of this morning:

Will Not Throw Votes Away.
Another instance of the office seeking the man. Eugene M. Campbell of Lyndonville has been nominated by the Prohibitionists for governor. He is a good citizen and deserves a bigger vote than he will get, for people have no idea of throwing their votes away this fall.—St. Johnsbury Republican.

Will the editor of the Republican please enlighten us as to what he really means when he uses this stock statement? Are we to assume he has no principles in the matter of his voting? That he simply votes with the party that for the time being at least is in the majority? Certainly one would expect to be justified in forming such an opinion; there are five or six or more different parties that will have tickets in the field this fall, all asking for the suffrages of the people; the platforms of these several parties are widely different (unless we except the two leading parties, which, at least on the only real issue between them is the tariff agree practically, at least both are for tariff revision); are we then to take the position that so far as Vermont is concerned all should be Republicans so as not to "throw their votes away"? And so far as the national ticket is concerned, just at present, as things now appear, all had better get aboard the Taft band wagon? If voting simply for the sake of being on the winning side, or if, with an eye towards the post-office or some other governmental position was what we were after, then we concede that voting for principle would be foolish and "throwing your vote away"; but that is not what we Prohibitionists are voting for; we believe the prohibition of the drink traffic in this country to be an issue, besides the tariff, anti-injunction, trust-busting, and trust-trading are but pigmies; that the drink problem solved, all these other minor issues will be quickly solved; drive the accursed legalized drink traffic from this country, and there will be such a demand for breadstuffs, clothing, boots and shoes and all other necessities of life, as that business will take such a boom as that people will scarcely have time to bother with the tariff. But now let's consider another clipping from the Hartford Times:

"Two national political conventions are yet to be held. The two parties that haven't picked their tickets are the Prohibitionists, who will meet in Columbus, Ohio, this week, and the Independence League, which is scheduled to assemble in national convention in Chicago on July 27. The Prohibition convention will, in point of numbers, be a big affair if the bulk of the 1512 accredited delegates attend. A good deal of enthusiasm is likely to develop. The spread of the temperance wave which has taken place since the last Prohibition national convention, and which has resulted in outlawing the saloon from various states and localities, is bound to encourage the cold-water party."

The Hartford Times admits the convention bids fair to be "a big affair if all the accredited delegates are present"; (so far as New York state is concerned the press says the 115 and their alternates are present); all there paying their own expenses, without present hope of reward in the shape of a cabinet position, post-office or anything else but to name a ticket for which they may "throw their votes away"; may we ask the good editor of the Republican (who we venture to say is a Prohibitionist when the question of license or no-license is before him) if it doesn't sort of look as though the time was rapidly approaching when we foolish Prohibitionists would not be "throwing our votes away"? And are we wild in assuming that if that time should perchance come, a little in advance of the time expected by the Republican, if we may not safely look for him making quick strides to climb up on to the "cold water wagon"? We want to say to the good "Republican" we will give him a hearty welcome, and we won't throw in his face all the foolish and complimentary things he and the rest of the fellows have been saying about us all these years; in fact, if I were to give away a "stage secret," we are very grateful for all these things that are said; for, don't you see, we're getting a great deal of gratuitous advertising; it also gives us a chance to "talk back" as I am now doing (provided the "Times" gives me space), and thus get before the people a great many facts and ideas we would not otherwise be able to get before them.

Vermont, like a great many other states and communities, is overwhelmingly for prohibition; this is evidenced by the "No" vote taken last spring, when almost the entire state said, "No" when the question of license or no-license was before them; if prohibition is right at one time, why so wrong or foolish all the time? If good as a statutory enactment, why not better as a constitutional enactment, and not subject to repeal and to be fought over every year? Maine in its Republican state platform says "no re-submission," but a continuation of the present constitutional enactment which as it says "has been of such great benefit to the state"; why if so good for Maine is it not good for Vermont and every other state in the union?

One thing more and I will not trespass further upon your space and patience; does the "Republican" think for one moment the temperance question would be in the advanced state it is today were it not for the agitation of these people who annually "throw their votes away"? The Republican does not, I assume, question the righteousness of the principle for which we contend?

In conclusion, let me assure the "Republican" with all kindness of feeling, we feel at least we are quite competent to judge for ourselves as to what is the wise and correct course for us to pursue; our conscience is clear, we feel we are right, we know we are right, God knows we are right, the "Republican" knows we are right, and so it's all right, all around, and we will continue to fight on, vote on, "throw our votes away," if you please, until such a time as the awakened conscience of this country shall unite their forces and their votes with ours, and then by the blessing of God we will sweep this country from North to South, from East to West, of the whole foul blot that now rests upon it, and then the "Republican" and all good Republicans, and all other good men, and we trust women, too, will sing, "Praise God, from Whom all blessings flow."

Yours for constitutional prohibition, state and national,

L. C. Andrews,
Chairman State Pro. Com.

A STATEMENT

Concerning the Lambertson Fire of Last Saturday.

Editor Barre Daily Times—Dear Sir: Will you kindly allow me room in your paper to relate a few facts concerning the "Lambertson fire" as they were given to me by the owners of the property? In the first place, although the account of the fire was written from Marshfield, by your regular correspondent, the mill property was situated in the town of Cabot, the town line running below the mill, over one mile. Mr. Lambertson's post-office address is Marshfield, and doing most of his business this way, is considered as belonging here; yet his taxes are all paid to the town of Cabot. When it was found that the mill help could not control the fire, Mr. Lambertson called for the engine from the village of Cabot, and straightway sent his four-horse team after the same. At the top of the hill they were met by a posse of men from Cabot, who were coming in answer to the call, and one of the crowd told the driver that he could not have the engine. After the fire had burned over an hour and one-half, so much was said about the disposition of the fire company not to turn out when called that one of the number called for the engine by 'phone and Mr. Lambertson again sent his teams out; but before the engine could be fairly started, again word was sent that it was too late. In the matter of getting the fire company ready to start, would say, that the old adage, "Better late than never," doesn't work at a fire, however, to give "honor to whom honor is due," let us appreciate the start.

It is true that the Cabot engine company did valiant work at the Marshfield fire three years ago, and all considered the saving of the upper end of the town due to them, and in return did not the Marshfield men turn out when the Wales shop fire occurred last winter at Cabot village? And should there be need of help, either way, there is no doubt of speedy reply to the call. Yet is it well to find the facts in any case before giving the "mistaken idea" to anyone, either in the items or editorials.

Yours very truly,
Blanche L. Pike.
